Local dailies report SRSG Ashraf Qazi told a press conference yesterday that UNMIS has in its mandate a Chapter VII with regard to protection of civilians.

According to Al-Rai Al-Aam, UN has threatened to use Chapter VII of its Charter to protect civilians in Abyei if they are in imminent danger after the PCA ruling is announced. We are mandated to protect civilians who are in imminent danger of physical harm,” Qazi told the press conference yesterday. “We have reinforced our contingent in Abyei town, in Agok and in Diffra, in order to be able to meet these responsibilities towards UN personnel and UN property and civilians in imminent danger when it lies within our capability to assist, protect and escort them to safety. That is Chapter VII obligation within our mandate and we will fulfill that,” he added.

Asked by the paper to react to Qazi’s statement, FM Deng Alor said, “With regard to your question about my reaction to the Ashraf Qazi’s statement, I would say that Qazi’s statement was a precaution. Meanwhile, Abyei Chief Administrator Arop Moyak has threatened to hold accountable those who have provided inaccurate information to the SRSG about presence of SPLA force in Abyei, Akhir Lahza reports. He told the paper that Ashraf Qazi would be held responsible for any incident in the area caused by his baseless charges. Ban condemns bombings along Chadian-Sudanese border

UN News Centre 20/7/09 - Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon today deplored reported bombings along or near the Chadian-Sudanese border and urged both countries to exercise restraint and improve their frayed bilateral relations amid rising tensions in the region.

In a statement issued by his spokesperson, Mr. Ban said he was disturbed by the report that Chadian aircraft dropped bombs near the village of Umm Dukhum in the Sudanese region of West Darfur last week.

“These events put the lives of Sudanese civilians at risk and could increase the tensions between the two countries,” the statement said.

“The Secretary-General condemns the incident and takes note that the Government of Sudan has rightly responded through diplomatic means. He urges both Governments to show restraint and make greater efforts to improve their relations.”

The statement noted that Mr. Ban is also concerned by reports that Sudanese Government forces bombed rebel positions in the Jebel Moon area of West Darfur on the weekend. He called on the Government and other parties to the conflict to cease all military actions and commit to a cessation of hostilities.

Today, in his latest report on the UN mission to Chad and the Central African Republic (CAR), known as MINURCAT, Mr. Ban said recent clashes in the region have further destabilized the already insecure border between Chad and Sudan’s volatile Darfur region, areas also facing a grave humanitarian crisis.

The day after the Chadian and Sudanese Governments signed an agreement, violence broke out on the border when rebels entered eastern Chad on 4 May.

Authorities from Chad accused Sudan of supporting the incursion, and launched air raids against Chadian rebels in Darfur, a move the Sudanese Government labelled an “act of war,” according to the report.

The Secretary-General stressed that “enduring stabilization” in the region requires both nations to resolve continuing internal conflicts.

He voiced concern over the humanitarian situation in eastern Chad, where 260,000 Sudanese refugees, 70,600 CAR refugees and 171,000 internally displaced persons (IDPs) are receiving assistance.
