Al-Rai Al-Aam publishes text of confidential correspondences between Ocampo and Guehenno

(Summary) UNMIS held a series of meetings for discussion on confidential correspondences exchanged between Ocampo and DPKO USG reported by the paper last Monday. The paper tried to find out from UNMIS officials whether its mandate includes gathering information relating to claims of crimes in Darfur and whether there is coordination or conflict between SOFA and the agreement between UN and the ICC? It seems more time is needed to get the answers from UNMIS officials.

An UNMIS source who spoke on condition of anonymity told the paper that UNMIS sends its reports to UN in NY not to any other quarter. The source explains that to carry out its activities, the Mission can cooperate with UN Agencies operating in Sudan but it does not deal directly with other bodies. The source added UNMIS role is to assist NCP and SPLM to implement the CPA including to maintain security and stability, conduct elections, border demarcation, DDR, IDP returns and democratic transformation. With regard to Darfur, UNMIS mandate is to cooperate with UNAMID.

On sending confidential reports to the ICC, the source said such dealing might have been personal, between Jean Marie Guehenno and the ICC but there is no evidence that UNMIS has dealt with the ICC.

UNMIS PIO Director Khaled Mansour did not deny or confirm the paper’s information. “We are now studying the Mission’s document and we can not comment before we have finished, “he said. Khaled expects the Mission to issue statement after sufficient information is obtained.

The ICC Prosecutor’s letter to Guehenno is dated 8 June 2005. “I am now writing to you to seek your cooperation in providing my Office access to documents and information held by the United Nations Mission in Sudan. Such access will be important in the investigation of crimes allegedly committed in Darfur,” Ocampo’s letter says.

According to Guehenno’s response, the ICC Prosecutor’s Office asked to access the following information:

1. Human rights reports.
2. Reports of security incidents in Darfur.
3. Reports of relevant UNMIS sections/units:
   a) Old and new incidents in Darfur that may have involved commission of international crimes especially since the issuance of report of International Commission of Inquiry on Darfur.
   b) Concrete steps which the Sudanese authorities may have taken or are taking to investigate or prosecute such crimes or the absence of such steps.
4. UNMIS situation reports.
5. CPA implementation political analysis.

“I am pleased to inform you that UN is ready to provide your Office access to copies of documents that may be held by UNMIS,” the letter says. Guehenno’s letter says the information and documents, being so highly sensitive should not be made available to a third party, including other organs within the ICC, without prior approval of the UN.

Guehenno’s letter concludes by saying: “I shall be grateful, as you have mentioned in your letter, that your office will reply in writing and I hope the said arrangements are acceptable to you. Only after that I will be able to ask the SRSG in Sudan to go ahead to provide your office with the desired documents”.

(The newspaper indicates that it will continue releasing more information about some bodies that cooperate with Ocampo from within Sudan)

Oil price drop may force Sudan to tighten belts: Officials

October 21, 2008 (KHARTOUM) – Sudan is considering new fiscal measures in lights of the continued drop in oil prices, a newspaper reported today.

The independent Al-Sudani newspaper quoting sources at the finance ministry said that Khartoum established a committee to evaluate the economic situation and come up with recommendations to prevent a possible crisis.

The committee is contemplating an “exceptional budget” for 2009 that will likely cut down on expenditure and focuses on new revenue opportunities besides petroleum industry.

Furthermore the government will scrutinize adherence to the budget for the remaining months of 2008.

The Sudanese finance and national economy minister Awad Al-Jaz has reportedly met with heads of government owned companies to discuss ways of boosting revenue and make up for shortfall in oil prices.

Many Sudanese economists have warned that government spending is getting out of control leading to a rise in inflation rates.

However the global financial crisis has led investors to believe that oil demand will be severely curtailed in developed nations and possible China and India. Crude oil is down 52 percent from its all-time peak of $147.27 reached July 11. (ST)
